

Neural Networks and Deep Learning

Deep learning relies on artificial neural networks with multiple layers (deep architectures). These networks are excellent at feature extraction from raw data like images, audio, and text. Key components include activation functions, backpropagation, and gradient descent.